Search and Rescue is a turn-based science fiction adventure game for iPhone and iPod Touch. You become Sara, a rescue pilot who has just completed her training and is heading for the one and only spaceport on a distant planet. Your mission is to repair a faulty spaceship. Once you have accomplished this you must then find the all important fuel. You will have to explore the planet, find other spaceships, overcome dangerous obstacles and impress the game master. The story unfolds in an unknown galaxy where Earth seems to be close to self-destruction. On a nearby planet a large Corporation has taken over control of the defence system and their plan is to construct and launch an army of unmanned attack spaceships to take over the galaxy and replace the "barbaric" rule of the "sheeple". Sara has been chosen as one of the few that are capable of counter measures and is about to be taken back to Earth to train her. Her mission is to rescue a scientist that is missing and find the missing fuel for the space port where she will be able to take off and escape. As Sara she will explore the planet, communicate with the other spaceships that arrive at the space port, and you will have to jump and swim through space to avoid enemy fire. The biggest challenge of the game is to plan ahead to evade the enemy and find all the fuel and the scientist. As you reach the rescue zone you need to carefully plan your route to a safe landing zone and find your way back to the scientist. Sara is played for free and you do not need to register an account at Indiegogo Official site: Indiegogo Campaign: Future Updates: * Navigation through space, building of the space port, radio communications, upgrades to the ship iPhone and iPod Touch games Brace yourself and face the unknown. > Game Info > About Indiegogo > Download > Feedback > Creator's Notes > The Story > The Main Objectives > IndieGameSARA The Game This is a survival, action-adventure game where you have to rescue a missing scientist from a hostile planet. If you don't have time in the allotted time or if you run into objects more than 3 times, the level will start over. - 5 different vehicles with different characteristics, such as the extent of processing power and engine capacity. - 5 different routes with different speeds and under different weather conditions. - Levels for different degrees of difficulty (Easy, Medium, Hard) - The level of difficulty can be adjusted at any time - Different routes for all levels - The ability to play in the background so that other programs can run simultaneously - The ability to configure the game so that you can select specific colors, fonts, etc. - A variety of unnecessary objects - Different color options - Play the game when you are offline - The ability to share the game with other devices - The ability to change the sound from the game - Load and save game More features will be added in a future version. Hi, I need a free, browser-based parking lot simulation game with a warehouse mechanic, designed in HTML, Javascript, and CSS. The game will not need to maintain a database or online connection. What I'm looking for is a graphical application that uses a map (the dimensions of which will need to be defined in the game) with one or more parking spots (which can be selected from an area map) in each spot, and one or more parking trucks. Each parking spot can be filled with one truck, and can contain one or more cars and/or bicycles. Each truck can be positioned in the parking spot, and should be locked into the spot. I would like the game to be scalable, and thus scalable for different resolutions. I hope it's clear what I'm looking for, and if not, I will also do the best I can to make a clear and understandable explanation of my requirements. I don't need an example of a game that does anything like this, but if you think that you know of one that would fit my needs, please let me know. Hope this is enough info for now, I will come back later to give more details. I have a project where you are on a train and train stops at some stations on a map. You have to read words and direct the train to a specific station according to that. You can only do this once a day and you will have a limited time in which you can do this. [url removed, login to view] is the c9d1549cdd team we are proud to announce the ARMIKROG Beta 1 for Mac. ARMIKROG is a tool that allows you to recreate an animated and proportional grid – a brush – on your iDevice. In order to let you draw a new map you must use the Xcode app and in order to play the preview animation you must be connected to your computer through USB. This is an in-progress version, maybe it will change in the future but for now we are providing a package with all the features we already had on mind (once we get a new version of the iOS app we will provide the ones that let you do even more). Here are the features you should know before you start: Upload photos and see them as textures (so you can also use your phone camera for this!) Strokes have length and they can be rotated and/or colorized Strokes can be reused A color mask to run over the strokes with a certain impact (transparency mask!) The system scrolls the point of view (there is always a window that displays the last drawn grid) It is available on Github. How to install the package on your Mac? In this version you need to have Xcode installed. Open the Xcode.app and open a new Xcode project. For each project you need to select "Create New Xcode Project" from the left menu. Give the project a name and select iOS as the App File Type. Add the "menu file" to the Library files, export the code for iPhone ViewController and export also this file for iPad ViewController. Select Framework & Library (you need to include both framework & library files). Set the version as "1,0″. Once you have the projects cloned on the desktop change the project/target settings to tell Xcode where to look for the flashfiles. The first "Flash File" (the highest "Version number") must be stored in the "Supporting Files/Art/Artwork/Flash Files folder inside of your Xcode project. Go inside Library "Resources" folder (you'll find all the great app assets you may need, like images, icons, buttons, etc) and drag and drop in the Group folder the "Flash Files" you just created. In your "Supporting

Our world was once full of life, love and wonder. For our protagonist, it was home. But when a single act of animal cruelty created a living box, everything changed. Now, Nofer, an ordinary girl from an ordinary world, must embark on a journey through surreal lands to explore the box's origins. Will she ever find a way home again? Find out in Framed! Framed is a sidescrolling, top-down exploration adventure with puzzle elements and platforming, now available on Windows 10 and PlayStation 4. Framed is a pure, logical, and observational game: the player takes on the role of Nofer, an ordinary person who is a normal girl, just like you. On her way to school, she will come across a seemingly ordinary object, and must investigate it and solve the puzzles it presents. The object she is sent on a quest to discover is different for each player, depending on their unique profile. Framed is a pure adventure game, taking place entirely from a first-person perspective. The player must solve problem, and can even manipulate objects in the world to further their progression. Framed offers a very friendly and intuitive interface, never forcing the player to perform maneuvers they don't want to in order to progress. Key Features: - An intuitive and friendly interface - An intelligent hint system that doesn't require player's reference documents - An easy-to-use inventory - Playable with a keyboard and mouse combo, with only a mouse, or with a controller - Convenient zoom system and scroll system - Sidescrolling, top-down perspective - Four unique worlds, three episodes, more to come - Unique and perfectly designed environments, every level is a new puzzle Like a latter-day Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Steven Barnes comes up with no less than seven different methods of challenging a fresh audience: music, pictures, text only, a letter from the Queen, a fantasy setting, a family tragedy, and nostalgia. Discover why Sherlock Holmes is still so relevant! Immerse yourself in the horror of the Silent Hill games as never before! The decisions you make will change the course of this story. What would you do if you found yourself in a place where no one else has ever been before? The answer is different for every player. "As serious as I care about precision, I care more about honesty. I care about truth."
