William Moffat The Reverend William Moffat (1740–1799) was a Scottish minister. He is chiefly remembered for his association with Robert Burns; both men were ordained at Moffat, Burns in 1784, Moffat in 1792. The poet visited the minister repeatedly on the Border, between 1786 and 1791, but often passed the time at the inn at Moffat Bridge. Burns was a regular guest at Moffat Church, where he gave a series of three Burns Suwadies in 1790. Other known associates were fellow minister of the parish the Reverend John Riddell, who wrote Burns' first church history, and whose work was used by Burns in A Letter to a Friend Concerning the Complaints of a justly offended Person; and Archibald Guthrie, of Irvine. In 1790, Burns dedicated his New Testament to Moffat. See also Guthrie's New Testament References External links Full text of Burns' letter to Moffat, in the University of Dundee.
