The war has opened new doors and new avenues. Railway lines stretch out across the continent and into the hinterlands and all manner of bizarre things can be accomplished. Advertising has been revolutionary. The world--everything is now within reach. Is this a dream or reality? For an idea of how quickly the world is changing, take a look at the political map of a world that could hardly be more different from the one that existed just a few short weeks ago. The compelling story of a mother's childhood as the Nazis overrun Europe. Julie Metz tells the story of her mother who escaped the violent world of Vienna just before it fell to Hitler. Metz traces the journey of her mother, who was forced to leave her husband and family behind. She tells of her mother's struggle to find happiness after years of poverty and oblivion, and how she then spent her whole life to protect her daughter when Nazis came for her family. Metz not only tells the story of a mother's childhood and escape from Vienna during the chaos of the 1930s, but also how it was also a defining moment for the daughter and granddaughter who grew up in her shadow. Metz draws on the memories of her family to paint an unforgettable portrait of a woman who fought to save her beloved daughter from the Nazis. A little girl who never forgot the story of her mother's life, became, Metz tells the story of a true hero whose courage and devotion served as an inspiration to others throughout the years. A monumental book, Eva and Eve is at once startling and moving. It is a complete reckoning and a moving, true, and unique account of what it means to escape the fate that the Nazis and their allies
