That works fine. But the name is still in the middle of the screen. I would like the name to be in the top left as other trainers do, if you cant do that I could do with the message to not appear on screen. If the trainer doesn't work, it may be because you didn't save the game when the trainer was active. If your name isn't the one you see in the game, then the game will already be saved after you enter the "Load Game" option, and you need to make sure you save again.

Luke Hawx was in the ring with professional wrestlers for over 20 years. You may know him as a wrestler from Reality Of Wrestling, Gold Championship Wrestling, WildKat Pro

Wrestling, and, most recently, White Boy Wrestling, where he served as the commissioner for several seasons. In 2017, Luke signed with Wrestling-Cage and became their trainer and ambassador. And, being from Louisiana, he brought his experience, culture, and way of life to create the best experience for his wrestlers. Thirdly, it comes down to money. Unlike the weight loss machines, which are all highly profitable once you realize what they are, the trainers are not based on any compelling features. The only reason you have them is because you can't figure out how to do that stuff. Hawx joined the ROH in 2018. Since then, he has competed in the Tag Wars Tournament of 2018, the 2018 Tag Wars Tournament of PROGRESS, the 2019 Tag Wars Tournament of The Crash, 2019s PROGRESS Tag Wars and 2020's Tag Wars. In April 2001, Spade debuted for World Wrestling Federation. His first televised match was in WWF In Your House. He appeared on WWF Shotgun Saturday Night. He competed mainly on WWF Jakked. He also wrestled for Ring of Honor and Pro Wrestling Guerrilla. Hawx made his Ring of Honor debut in a street fight between The American Wolves and Kevin Steen and El Generico. Hawx won the match and defeated Steen. In May 2001, he made his PWG debut for promotion in Texas by competing in an edition of It's Time To Explode. Spade also appeared for Total Nonstop Action Wrestling. Spade served as the personal assistant to Eddie Guerrero in a storyline where he administered illegal supplements to Guerrero. He was also in the Rey Mysterio vs. Eddie Guerrero match for the TNA World Heavyweight Championship at Against All Odds. Spade appeared on WWE Monday Night Raw. He made his WWE television debut at the 2007 Royal Rumble by making it to the match but was eliminated by Edge.
