For example, Patent Literature 1 discloses a technique in which a display screen and a button that generates a click sound are provided separately, and the button is operated using a finger or the like, and the click sound is generated by a click sound generation portion provided in the button. Moreover, Patent Literature 2 discloses a technique in which the distance from a display screen of an electronic device is detected by an infrared sensor, and a button is operated in accordance with a distance that is detected, so that a click sound is generated.
