Generally, the fuel injection system, which usually comprises two components, an engine-driven injector and a fuel rail which supplies fuel to the injector, also may not be fully energized for several days or weeks before the engine is started. Similarly, the sensors in an electronic control unit (ECU) which controls the air pollution control devices generally may not be energized for a period of up to several days or weeks. As a result, the amount of fuel supplied to the engine may be inadequate, the air pollution control devices may not work properly, and the air quality in the ambient air may not be controlled.A bid by a Muslim organisation to remove pork products from school canteen menus has been supported by the New South Wales government. The decision, announced on Monday, comes after the Australian Islamic Mission (AIM) called for official guidance on the matter and the inclusion of halal food on school canteens. "It is the school's prerogative to decide which options it can provide in its school canteens, and there is no requirement on councils or schools to
